THE WORLD OF LIVING

▶ THE WORLD OF DEAD

On October 31st, we celebrate Halloween, thought to be the one night of the year when ghosts, witches, and fairies are especially active.

In the 5th century, in the place where today is Great Britain and Northern France, the Celts lived.

They celebrated New Year with a festival called "Samhain" on November 1st.

It was a holiday of the end of the "Sun Season".

In the year 835 the Roman Catholic Church made November 1st a church holiday of all saints who don't have a special day in the year. This holiday was called "All Saints day" or "All Hallows Day".

People started to celebrate another holiday on October 31st – “All Hallows Eve” (the night before “All Hallows Day”). Now we call this festival “Halloween”.

People strongly believed that Halloween is the night when communication between the worlds of living & the dead can be.

Dead people visit our world as witches, goblins, ghosts, black cats, and skeletons.

Jack-o-lanterns are pumpkins with lighted candles inside which were used to frighten away evil spirits.

On Halloween people wore masks & costumes when they left homes after dark so that the ghosts would mistake them for other evil spirits.
